A "comics shop" is a store that sells old comic books to collectors as a regular business. Such a store can sell any number of other items as long as it meets this requirement. Such a store need not be open every day, but must have regular hours, so a dealer operating out of his home does not qualify.

This is a listing of the comics shops in continental North America and Hawaii. All stores are listed in geographic order by state. Because there is no accurate way to compile a complete list of international comics shops, they will not be included.

This listing seeks to list the following information about each of the comics shops included:

- 1) The name of the comics shop.
- 2) The name of the owner/proprietor/person-to-see.
- 3) The address of the comics shop.
- 4) Does the comics shop sell new comics?
- 5) Does the store have a specialty, that is, does it sell somethings that distinguish it from every other comics shop? If so, what is it? Note, comics supplies and Marvel comics in general are not specialties. Inventory depth and breadth identifies what is.

A store telephone number and a schedule of the shop's hours will be included if supplied. We advise travelers to telephone ahead to comics shops in case of a change in hours or location.

TO MURRAY: I don't know how you did it.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS: The previous 12+ pages were entirely Murray's inspiration and hard work, and I think he deserves a big pat on the back for doing it. Murray (shown in the photos at left) spent almost two solid weeks preparing the list once he had the information, and to get the information was itself no small task (for example, he spent over 10 hours in the library going through every single phone book in the country!). And now after finishing this list, he begins his regular column, "NOW WHAT?", for this issue of The Buyer's Guide. I hope he survives the week!

So, Murray, a big THANKS for THE NATIONAL COMICS SHOP REGISTER...fandom needed it, and you did it. Good job.
